Cleveland, O., May 15.—Eighty-two bodies were recovered from the Cleveland Clinic Hospital, wrecked by three explosions and swept by fire today.

More than 100 persons were believed injured.

Flames which swept through the five-story building immediately after the explosions were believed to have trapped many others.

It was said 200 persons were in the structure when the blasts occurred.

The dead and injured were taken to nearby hospitals.

Unofficial reports said the explosion was caused by an X-ray machine in the basement. Chemicals in the pharmacy exploded, spreading flames and deadly fumes.

The first explosion occurred shortly before noon, another followed in fifteen minutes and a third shook the structure several minutes later while firemen and police were in the building on rescue work.

Firemen came upon a gruesome spectacle on the second floor of the building.

The landing leading to the clinic and operating rooms revealed a pile of bodies—some dead, some injured, all unconscious.

Intermingled with the bodies were chunks of plaster and debris from the ceiling and walls.

F. B. Conklin, proprietor of Danceland, a dance hall across the street, witnessed the blasts. He was standing on the lawn when he heard a deep rumbling noise.

"I glanced over at the clinic and saw the roof lift as the explosion tore through," Conklin said.

Instantly the doors were opened and nurses and patients fled screaming from the building. About a score of girls appeared at the first and second story windows and jumped to the ground. Fire broke out immediately.

"Pedestrians ran to the building and caught some of the girls as they leaped," Conklin continued. "A dozen men jumped from the building. Some broke their legs and sustained other injuries."

"The clinic was the scene of the utmost confusion. Screams of men and women rent the air. Faces of frightened persons appeared at the windows and then were withdrawn as the flames licked at them."

"Firemen and police rushed into the building and were soon carrying out bodies—some dead, some unconscious. The first they reached were the injured who had managed to reach the doors."

"Those who died never had a chance. They were helpless in their beds."

2 BANDITS AT PROCTOR SHOOT, KILL AND ROB

BRUCE PALMER, 56, RAILROAD POLICEMAN, SHOT DOWN AND KILLED

TWO BANK MESSENGERS FLEE, PAYROLL OF $4,800 SEIZED BY ROBBERS

Duluth, Minn., May 15.—(UP)—City and county authorities today were without clues to the identity of two bandits who late Tuesday shot and killed a railroad policeman and robbed two bank messengers of $4,800 at the railroad depot in Proctor, a suburb of Duluth.

The money had been taken from a Duluth bank and was to be deposited in a Proctor bank to meet a payroll of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern railroad today.

Bruce Palmer, 56, who had been sent from West Duluth to guard the bank messengers, was shot three times without warning. The bandits then ordered the messengers to drop the money and began a fusillade of shots at the messengers' feet.

Roy Carlson and Iver Anderson, the messenger, dropped the payroll bags and fled.

Holding off a crowd of 20 persons that had been attracted to the scene by the shots, the robbers picked up the bags and fled in a motor car. They headed for the Twin Cities on highway No. 1.

The bandits were believed to have had "inside" information regarding the movement of the payroll. Money had been sent from Duluth to Proctor by messenger frequently.

The men were described as about 30 years old. Both wore caps pulled down over their eyes.

Minneapolis, May 15.—Police here today declared they believed the motor car used in the robbery of two bank messengers at Proctor Tuesday had been stolen.

The car was said to have borne a license plate assigned to a car owned by Stanley Nonsavage, who had not been located today.

Graf Zeppelin to Start Its Second Trans-Atlantic Voyage at 6 a. m. Tomorrow, Stated

PLEDGED NOT TO FLY OVER FRENCH MILITARY WORKS

DR. HUGO ECKENER, COMMANDER, EMPHASIZES NECESSITY OF PROMPT START

RESTRICTIONS PLACED ON THE FLIGHT BY THE FRENCH GOVERNMENT

By MAURITZ A. HALLGREN (United Press Staff Correspondent)

Friedrichshafen, Germany, May 15.—The Graf Zeppelin, under pledge not to fly over any French military factories or military works, will start its second trans-Atlantic voyage at 6 A. M. tomorrow, it was announced today.

Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander of the dirigible, in setting the hour of departure, emphasized the necessity of a prompt start, because of the restrictions placed on the flight by the French government.

The start was delayed 24 hours by difficulties over crossing French territory, and under the present arrangements, the zeppelin must be over the border before 9 A. M. tomorrow or she will have to turn back.

The permit received from the French government allows the airship to pass the border on May 15 or 16 between the hours of 7 and 9 A. M.

A flight on any subsequent morning may be made only if the French ministers of war, navy and aviation are notified in advance. Eckener must give his word not to pass over stipulated military works.

The delay in the start, which had been set for early this morning, was attributed to delay by the French government in forwarding the necessary permission.

Dr. Eckener for a time today debated the advisability of taking a northern route over Holland, avoiding France altogether, which would have made a start this afternoon feasible.

However, while the weather in that direction was fair, Eckener decided that the winds would be too strong to enable fair headway, and the airship would make better time by delaying 12 hours and taking the southern route over France.

Prince, chairman of the First National Bank, which recently was merged with the Merchants' National Bank, announced today that the proposed building which will house the institution will be a 21-story structure, rather than 16 stories as was at first planned, and will cost $2,500,000.

DIRIGIBLE VOYAGE INTO ARCTIC IS BEING PLANNED

Berlin, May 15.—(U.P.)—A dirigible voyage into the Arctic, with Dr. Hugo Eckener as possible navigator, was planned at an Aero-Arctic meeting which adjourned here last night after meeting two days.

The flight would be made in February and March, 1930, and would be divided into three stages, according to the plans.

Starting at Friedrichshafen, the Zeppelin would fly to a mooring mast in northernmost Europe and thence make a three to five day cruise along the coasts of Greenland and Canada to Fairbanks, Alaska. There the dirigible would be overhauled and refueled.

The second stage would be a three-day trip into the unknown parts of the Arctic with a flight over the North Pole as one feature.

On the return from the Arctic to Fairbanks, the third and final stage would be a flight southward along the Behring straits and the Asiatic coast.

The prince was being shown the functioning of a can-making machine at the Northeast Coast Exposition when Foreman Guinness, acting as his guide, slipped from a 7-foot ladder onto a moving belt below.

SOUGHT A WILD LIFE OF ADVENTURE IN THE FAR WEST

THE DAPPER YOUNG COLLEGIAN, RICHARD N. BURROWS, NOW IN JAIL

CONFESSES TO MURDER IN ARIZONA WHICH MAY LEAD TO GALLOWS

Denver, Colo., May 15.—(UP)—A dapper young collegian who left the fashionable St. Johns military academy in Delafield, Wis., a month ago with the announced intention of living a wild life of adventure in the golden west, had his dream rudely shattered today by a chilly cell in the Denver jail.

Alone, after hours of questioning, the youth, Richard Nash Burrows, 20-year-old foster son of a prominent Chicago family, awoke to a realization that he had confessed to a murder in Arizona which might lead him to the gallows or prison for life.

Burrows was arrested by chance yesterday as a suspected automobile thief. Talking glibly of millionaires with whom he claimed to be friendly, the youth aroused suspicions of police, who continued to question him.

Tired of discipline at St. Johns, he said, he left with another student, Milton Drucker, also of Chicago. Together they went to Los Angeles, got hungry and decided to head back home.

In Phoenix the two wanderers were arrested as vagrants. Drucker's mother came and took her son home, leaving Burrows alone.

"That was the break that hurt," the youth said. "My family deserted me and I didn't care what happened."

"Hitch-hiking" eastward, Burrows was given a lift near Wickenburg, Ariz., by a kind motorist named Jack Martin, he said.

Martin resisted when Burrows decided to rob him, and had to be slugged. Later, Burrows told police he shot the motorist and hid the body. Taking the machine the youth drove on to Denver by way of Albuquerque.

Phoenix authorities reported that a Jack Martin had been missing with his automobile since March 26. His body had not been found and Burrows probably will be taken to Arizona to help locate it.

Investigating further, police found that the youth was the foster son of Walter M. Burrows, a trader on the Chicago live stock market, and foster grandson of Frederick R. Burrows, superintendent of the Swift Packing Company, Chicago.

TWO HOUSES OF CONGRESS ARE "AT ODDS"

SENATE, WITH DIRE THREATS, SENDS ITS BILL TO HOUSE CHAMBER

CARRIES NUMEROUS AMENDMENTS INCLUDING DEBENTURE CLAUSE

By PAUL R. MALLON (United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, May 15.—The farm relief question became a real issue between the two houses of congress today.

With dire threats and hot words, the senate sent its bill across the capitol to the house chamber. It carries numerous amendments including the debenture or tariff bounty clause against which President Hoover has lodged strong objections.

House leaders were preparing a cold reception for the debenture provision despite the threats of senate retaliation if it is not granted courteous legislative treatment. They do not intend to let the disputed debenture provision come to a vote in the house if they can prevent it.

They are talking privately of refusing to accept the entire bill on the ground the debenture clause usurps the house prerogative of instituting revenue legislation.

Before passing the bill into yesterday by a vote of 54 to 33, the senate heard of the plans of house leaders. Threats were made openly by some senators that if the house turned a cold shoulder to the proposition they would favor the breaking of all legislative ties between the two houses, thus stalemating all legislation. Such a thing has never happened in the history of the congress.

On the final senate roll call, the administration turned against the bill it had sponsored because the coalition of the farm bloc and the democrats had succeeded in putting over the debenture project.

Of the votes cast against the bill, 31 came from such administration stalwarts as Floor Leader James E. Watson and Republican Whip Simon Fess who called those voting for the debenture plan "pseudo republicans."

In favor of the bill, debenture and all, were 21 republicans including 13 who previously had voted for the debenture plan, and 33 democrats. These republicans included Borah, of Idaho, the leading administration campaigner last fall, Brookhart of Iowa, Hiram Johnson of California, and even McNary of Oregon, Capper of Kansas, and Couzens of Michigan. The latter three previously voted against the debenture plan.

Administration senators voted against the bill for two reasons, to show their loyalty to President Hoover and to show the house that the senate was by no means overwhelmingly in favor of its bill.

The senate bill is a complete rewrite of the house bill, but there being few important changes except the debenture provision.

Both bills authorize a $500,000,000 revolving fund to be administered by a federal farm board for the promotion of stabilization corporations representing each agriculture commodity. These stabilization corporations would buy and sell and store products in times of stress to prevent the market from being glutted.

The debenture clause proposes to give a bounty for all exported agriculture products, the bounty being equal to half the tariff on that commodity. The treasury would give the bounty in the form of certificates to be used by importers to pay tariff duties on any imported products.

The idea of the scheme is to boost the price of American commodities above the world price by 50 per cent of the tariff.

Northwest senators voted to send the farm relief measure to the house with the debenture clause included as follows:

For—Schall, republican, Shipstead farmer-labor, Minnesota; Blaine and LaFollette, republicans, Wisconsin; Nye and Frazier, North Dakota, republicans; McMaster and Norbeck, South Dakota, republicans.

Against—None.

Washington, May 15.—The senate farm bill with the disputed debenture feature was received in the house today with applause by the

PROHIBITION IN MEXICO IS TO BE INSTITUTED

THE INNOVATION WILL BE MADE GRADUALLY AND IN A "PRUDENT MANNER"

PRES. PORTES GIL IS OPPOSED TO ANY "REPRESSIVE MEASURES," IT IS STATED

Mexico City, May 15.—(UP)—Prohibition in Mexico will be instituted gradually "and in a prudent manner," President Emilio Portes Gil assured the public in his first statement on the methods he will use to make Mexico dry.

Since first announcing he would begin a campaign against alcohol in Mexico, Portes Gil has insisted he was opposed to "repressive measures," and the proposals before the public today outlined a steadily tightening anti-wet drive, accompanied by intensive propaganda in every available field.

The success of the drive will depend chiefly on the attitude of the next administration, since Portes Gil's term of office ends Feb. 5, 1930.

Portes Gil said a national committee will direct the movement, assisted by sub-committees of various state departments including the national health sections. Civilians and technicians will be included in the national committee's membership.

In its first form, the drive will limit the sale of hard liquors, such as gin, whiskey and absinthe, and later will prohibit their manufacture.

Tired of discipline at St. Johns, he said, he left with another student, Milton Drucker, also of Chicago. Together they went to Los Angeles, got hungry and decided to head back home.

Chicago, May 15.—(UP)—The Chicago city council will be asked today to approve placing of a 2,000,000,000 candlepower beacon atop a local skyscraper. The light would be as bright as the sun and visible to aviators 500 miles away. It is to be called "Lindbergh light" and is now under construction in Brooklyn.

SOUGHT A WILD LIFE OF ADVENTURE IN THE FAR WEST

THE DAPPER YOUNG COLLEGIAN, RICHARD N. BURROWS, NOW IN JAIL

CONFESSES TO MURDER IN ARIZONA WHICH MAY LEAD TO GALLOWES

Denver, Colo., May 15.—(UP)—A dapper young collegian who left the fashionable St. Johns military academy in Delafield, Wis., a month ago with the announced intention of living a wild life of adventure in the golden west, had his dream rudely shattered today by a chilly cell in the Denver jail.

Alone, after hours of questioning, the youth, Richard Nash Burrows, 20-year-old foster son of a prominent Chicago family, awoke to a realization that he had confessed to a murder in Arizona which might lead him to the gallows or prison for life.

Burrows was arrested by chance yesterday as a suspected automobile thief. Talking glibly of millionaires with whom he claimed to be friendly, the youth aroused suspicions of police, who continued to question him.

Tired of discipline at St. Johns, he said, he left with another student, Milton Drucker, also of Chicago. Together they went to Los Angeles, got hungry and decided to head back home.

In Phoenix the two wanderers were arrested as vagrants. Drucker's mother came and took her son home, leaving Burrows alone.

"That was the break that hurt," the youth said. "My family deserted me and I didn't care what happened."

"Hitch-hiking" eastward, Burrows was given a lift near Wickenburg, Ariz., by a kind motorist named Jack Martin, he said.

Martin resisted when Burrows decided to rob him, and had to be slugged. Later, Burrows told police he shot the motorist and hid the body. Taking the machine the youth drove on to Denver by way of Albuquerque.

Phoenix authorities reported that a Jack Martin had been missing with his automobile since March 26. His body had not been found and Burrows probably will be taken to Arizona to help locate it.

Investigating further, police found that the youth was the foster son of Walter M. Burrows, a trader on the Chicago live stock market, and foster grandson of Frederick R. Burrows, superintendent of the Swift Packing Company, Chicago.

TWO HOUSES OF CONGRESS ARE "AT ODDS"

SENATE, WITH DIRE THREATS, SENDS ITS BILL TO HOUSE CHAMBER

CARRIES NUMEROUS AMENDMENTS INCLUDING DEBENTURE CLAUSE

By PAUL R. MALLON (United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, May 15.—The farm relief question became a real issue between the two houses of congress today.

With dire threats and hot words, the senate sent its bill across the capitol to the house chamber. It carries numerous amendments including the debenture or tariff bounty clause against which President Hoover has lodged strong objections.

House leaders were preparing a cold reception for the debenture provision despite the threat of senate retaliation if it is not granted courteous legislative treatment. They do not intend to let the disputed debenture provision come to a vote in the house if they can prevent it.

They are talking privately of refusing to accept the entire bill on the ground the debenture clause usurps the House prerogative of instituting revenue legislation.

Before passing the bill late yesterday by a vote of 54 to 33, the senate heard of the plans of house leaders. Threats were made openly by some senators that if the house turned a cold shoulder to the proposition they would favor the breaking of all legislative ties between the two houses, thus stalemating all legislation. Such a thing has never happened in the history of the congress.

On the final senate roll call, the administration turned against the bill it had sponsored because the coalition of the farm bloc and the democrats had succeeded in putting over the debenture project.

Of the votes cast against the bill, 31 came from such administration stalwarts as Floor Leader James E. Watson and Republican Whip Simon Fess who called those voting for the debenture plan "pseudo-republicans."

In favor of the bill, debenture and all, were 21 republicans including 13 who previously had voted for the debenture plan, and 33 democrats.

These republicans included Borah, of Idaho, the leading administration campaigner last fall, Brookhart of Iowa, Hiram Johnson of California, and even McNary of Oregon, Capper of Kansas, and Couzens of Michigan. The latter three previously voted against the debenture plan.

Administration senators voted against the bill for two reasons, to show their loyalty to President Hoover and to show the house that the senate was by no means overwhelmingly in favor of its bill.

The senate bill is a complete rewrite of the house bill, but there being few important changes except the debenture provision.

Both bills authorize a $500,000,000 revolving fund to be administered by a federal farm board for the promotion of stabilization corporations representing each agriculture commodity. These stabilization corporations would buy and sell and store products in times of stress to prevent the market from being glutted.

The debenture clause proposes to give a bounty for all exported agriculture products, the bounty being equal to half the tariff on that commodity. The treasury would give the bounty in the form of certificates to be used by importers to pay tariff duties on any imported products.

The idea of the scheme is to boost the price of American commodities above the world price by 50 per cent or the tariff.

Northwest senators voted to send the farm relief measure to the house with the debenture clause included as follows:

For—Schall, republican, Shipstead farmer-labor, Minnesota; Blaine and LaFollette, republicans, Wisconsin; Nye and Frazier, North Dakota, republicans; McMaster and Norbeck, South Dakota, republicans.

Against—None.

Washington, May 15.—The senate farm bill with the disputed debenture feature was received in the house today with applause by the

WOLF HUNTER SLAYS 210 IN 25 YEARS

Doubtful if Anyone in Minnesota
Can Beat Record of
S. J. Berry

LIVES IN CENTER TOWNSHIP

Says Wolves Are Cowardly Lot; Has Tied 'em up and Brought
'em in Alive

S. J. Berry of Center township could claim honors as the champion wolf hunter of Minnesota but for his modesty.

Considering it of very little account Berry admitted this morning that in his 25 years in Minnesota he has trapped and shot more than 210 wolves.

Today he collected bounty on three cub wolves at the county auditor's office. He dug two of them out of a hole in the ground and killed the other in a nest in a clump of bushes in Center township yesterday. He was aware of the presence of the den by trailing the mother wolf.

Only recently Mr. Berry captured seven cub wolves and the mother. Among the countess sin which Mr. Berry has killed wolves are: Crow Wing, Morrison, Ottertail, Aitkin, Hubbard and Cass.

"No, I have never experienced any danger with wolves. They are a cowardly lot," said Mr. Berry, who reported that on occasions he had brought wolves alive to other townships to save time and transportation cost in applying for bounty.

Wolf hunting is Mr. Berry's favorite sport.

WHY CHRISTIANSON ROLLS MAJORITIES

THE St. Peter Herald has some interesting comment on action by Governor Christianson. Some may complain that the governor sits too tight on the treasury lid but the fact remains that his example is worth more to the taxpayers than even the appropriation savings he makes through vetoes. The Herald says:

"The governor decided that the Faribault school for the deaf could get along without a $65,000 gymnasium. He comments on this matter as follows:

"Other facilities for physical education are available. There is some question whether it should ever be necessary to provide a separate building for a gymnasium for an institution with only 250 pupils. Other schools with the same enrollment usually provide one room for this purpose, and I doubt whether the state would be setting the right example in erecting a building to be used exclusively for gymnasium purposes."

"That kind of logic sounds mighty good to the overburdened taxpayer. He also vetoed $6,000 proposed for equipment for the gym. Another item that got the axe was $6,000 for land at the school for the feeble-minded, for it was not demonstrated that this land was needed for institutional purposes. Another vetoed appropriation that is going to get a real chuckle of satisfaction in rural Minnesota was an item of $4,000 for an artificial refrigeration plant at the Red Wing training school. The governor said about this:

"The institution has a good ice house and there is plenty of inmate labor to put up ice. There are very few homes in Red Wing provided with artificial ice machines, and there can be no pressing need for giving the boys of the training school better facilities than those enjoyed by over 95 per cent of the taxpayers."

It is not difficult, says the Herald, to see why Governor Christianson rolls up his big majorities at the polls, or why he holds the confidence of the people.—Long Prairie Leader.

EMPHASIZES BETTER MARKETING OF FARM PRODUCTS

RAILROADS, big transcontinental lines like the Northern Pacific, take a keen interest in the territory they traverse. If the Northern Pacific territory is prosperous, if the farms and factories are flourishing and natural resources are developed, the railroad prospers in like measure.

The Northern Pacific Railway today is operating for the first time in America a specially equipped train designed to emphasize better marketing of farm products.

The train of seven coaches, with one flatcar constructed to serve as a demonstration platform, was equipped at the Washington State Agricultural College at Pullman, and is being operated over the lines of the Northern Pacific in Washington both east and west of the Cascade mountains.

This train virtually is taking to the farmers an agricultural educational institution. Members of the instructional staff of the college are accompanying the train. While better breeding, better feeding, better selection of seed, better planting, and all phases of agricultural activity are given attention at the portable educational institution, marketing is receiving major consideration. Modern practices in packaging and packing are shown. Coaches have been equipped as exhibit rooms through which farmers and townsfolk pass at each stop. Before them in models are graphically portrayed proven practices which are advocated by the agricultural college.

Side by side on this unique train poor quality cattle, sheep, hogs, and poultry are shown with high-type animals and fowl. By contrast the lesson is carried to the farmers.

The train, which was dedicated at Cheney, Wash., on May 6, will stop at 42 cities, towns, and villages on its three-weeks' tour. The progress of this train and its objectives are being observed in many states throughout the union.

JUST FISHING

THE real fisherman is a man of philosophical attainments. Izaak Walton has written voluminously of the proper attributes and one needs it all when they aren't biting.

The dyed-in-the-wool fisherman goes fishing to catch fish and wastes no time on other things. True, it is enough to try one's patience, sitting three in a boat and to have the man at the bow pulling them out while you in the center, get no bite or even a nibble. It is there that the philosophy gets a severe test.

We have seen men gifted with all the Walton virtues and equipped with rare reels, poles and other fishing gear cast alongside a ruddy country boy outfitted with a homemade pole and cheap hooks. The man with the wealth of fishing paraphernalia caught few or no fish and the country lad got the fish.

Out at Indian Trading Post we once saw a fond father try his luck at fishing and return empty-handed, while his baby son of only eight years, outfitted with a small pole and bait by kindly Indians, cast off the dock and landed a big pike.

To get the best out of the sport one should turn his whole attention to the problem of fishing and in so doing, just as in playing golf, one takes his mind off other worrying matters and gives mind and body a change of scene and real recreation.

AS WE SOW

A STRIKING story is told of a rich man who wanted to help a poor carpenter and his family. He hired the carpenter to build a house on a hillside and then went away on a long journey. The carpenter said to himself, "My boss is away, I can use shoddy materials, and neglect the supporting work that doesn't show. The house will be weak, but nobody will know it." So he built a ramshackle house.

When the rich man came back, the carpenter said, "Here is your house." "Thank you!" said the rich man. "Here is the deed and the key. I'm giving it to you."

And the carpenter grieved that he had robbed himself of a good house.

We reap what we sow. We have to live in the house of life we build. If we do shoddy work, if we "soldier" on the boss, we pinch ourselves, shrivel up and lose our ability to discern between right and wrong. We have to live in such a house without character. We have to live with ourselves!

It is a tremendous fact that each of us is building today the house we must live in tomorrow. We can build a palace or a hovel, a mansion or a jail, or a pigpen, but we must live in it.—The Suas Tika.

"Married Life" Not Worth While

Blames Wives' "Nerves"

"Weak nerves," said a New York doctor recently, "in my estimation wreck more happily married lives than any other cause."

Besides making the sweetest disposition sour and irritable, nervousness is a terrible drain on your vital forces—it saps your youth and your strength and dulls your beauty. What a difference from the bright-eyed, vibrant girl he married. No wonder married life seems unbearable!

But you can get rid of your nervousness—speedily too—and become the steady-nerved, radiant woman you once were. Take a teaspoonful of Tanlac before meals and before going to bed and if it doesn't soon make a new woman of you—doesn't rid you of that tired, strained feeling—go back and get your money.

Go to your druggist now and get a bottle of Tanlac. Millions of folks have started back on the road to youth, health and happiness with this world famous tonic and there is no reason why you, too, can't begin today to rebuild your worn-out tissues and revitalize your entire system.

Prague, May 15.—(C2)—Umberto Nobile, commander of the dirigible Italia

The dirigible's commander said he had no intentions of leaving Italy, as recent advices have indicated, and added he was determined to fight for a revision of the court's decision.

The defeat dropped the Cubs back into a tie with the St. Louis Cardinals for the National league leadership.

Hard and timely hitting enabled the Philadelphia Athletics to beat the Detroit Tigers, 10 to 8, and regain the American league lead. Al Simmons hit a home run and Joe Boley clouted two triples.

Bill Cissell's home run in the seventh broke a 2-2 tie and the Chicago White Sox went on to win from the Boston Red Sox, 6 to 2.

VIRTUALLY CLINCHES QUALIFYING HONORS IN THE TOURNAMENT

EVENT IS THE YORKSHIRE EVENING NEWS THOUSAND GUINEAS TOURNEY

Moortown, England, May 15.—The inevitable Walter Hagen who yesterday set a course record with a 69 on the Moortown links virtually clinched qualifying honors for the Yorkshire Evening News thousand guineas tournament here, with an excellent 70 today, one stroke under par.

His total of 139 left him with a five-stroke lead over that part of the field already in and those still playing were conceded little chance of catching the newly crowned British open champion.

Cold, threatening weather and heavy greens handicapped the field of American and British professional golfers who started the second 18 holes of the qualifying round of the Yorkshire Evening News thousand guineas tournament here today.

Leo Diegel scored a 37-36—73 over the Moortown course, giving him an aggregate of 144. Al Watrous, who scored a 70 yesterday, turned in a 38-36—74 today to tie Diegel.

Diegel played a steady round, Watrous three-putting six greens. Joe Turnesa, White Plains professional, added a 39-39—78 to his 75 on the first round for a 153 total.

The slowness of the greens added strokes to the cards of most of the players. Abe Mitchell, Great Britain, who totaled 71 on his first 18 holes, needed 74 today, taking 36 on the outgoing nine and a 38 coming home.

George Duncan, another leading Briton, was one of the few to better his performance of yesterday. He added a 72 today, 38 out and 34 home, to his 74 of yesterday for a total of 146.

SHAKEUP MADE SOON IN THE BROOKLYN ROBINS

Brooklyn, N. Y., May 15.—(U.P.)—A shakeup in the Brooklyn Robins is expected to be made soon which may affect even Uncle Wilbert Robinson, manager of the club for the last 15 years.

"If it will prove for the best interests of the club," Robinson said he might consider turning the managerial reins over to some one else.

The loss of Jake Flowers, who has gone home to undergo an appendicitis operation, and Glenn Wright, who probably is out for the greater part of the season because of his ailing arm, has demoralized the club.

GIANTS IN 7TH PLACE IN NA- TIONAL, CARDINALS TIE WITH CUBS

By GEORGE KIRKSEY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, May 15.—Changes in the betting odds on the major league pennant races, have made the Chicago Cubs and the New York Yankees favorites to meet in the world series.

When the season opened the Cubs and Giants were joint favorites in the National League at 11 to 5. The odds on the Cubs have been cut to 3 to 1.

Even though the Giants are down in seventh place, and the Cardinals are tied with the Cubs for the National League lead, better odds are available in St. Louis than either Chicago or New York. The Cards are quoted at 6 to 1, 2 to 1 and even.

On their showing to date the Cards appear quite as formidable as the Cubs or Giants and the long odds on the National League champions are unexplainable unless betting commissioners figure they can still count the 1928 world series against the Red Birds.

The poor showing of the Giants has many McGraw fans worried but the betting commissioners are afraid to make the price too attractive on New York, probably fearing the Giants will stage another one of their sensational finishes.

The Boston Braves have dropped from 100 to 1 to 25 to 1 but are not getting much play because almost everyone agrees that they are playing over their heads and can't last.

The Yankees remain odds-on favorites in the American League. They are quoted at 9 to 10. More money probably has been on the Yankees than on any other team in either league and betting men refuse to desert them.

The Athletics are second choices at 17 to 10 and are getting a good play from some of the smart money. Odds quoted on the first division clubs follow:

National League
Cubs	13 to 10
Cards	6 to 1
Braves	25 to 1
Pirates	10 to 1
American League
Yankee	9 to 10
Athletics	17 to 10

30 BOYS AND GIRLS GUESTS OF LIONS

Calf Club Members Feted by Brainerd Service Club at Dinner

STATE LEADER IS SPEAKER

Tells Group of Advantages Offered Through 4-H Club Work

Boys and Girls club work has become a leading educational program in rural Minnesota, one that will be a big factor in the advancement of agriculture, speakers told 30 calf club members at a dinner in the Chamber of Commerce rooms today sponsored by the Lions club of Brainerd, "partners" to this special group of future farmers and farmerettes in the raising of better calves.

T. A. Erickson, state Boys and Girls club leader, introduced by County Agent E. G. Roth as the big boss of club work in the state, told the boys and girls several interesting stories of how members had gained recognition through particular phases of club work.

He congratulated the Brainerd Lions club for the stand it had taken in sponsoring the calf club work in this part of the county.

Crow Wing county placed among the ten leading counties in the state last year and this record is most enviable, Mr. Erickson said, as Minnesota ranks leading in club work throughout the United States. At the present time, Mr. Roth explained in his introductory speech, this county has a membership in 4-H work of more than 600.

There is no philanthropy on the part of the Lions club in sponsoring this work, Mr. Roth stated previously to explaining the benefits Brainerd will derive through better farming in the county as a result of this educational program.

Henry Johnstone of Big Trout Lake responded to the request of members of the Lions club to sing. He sang two numbers, "Annie Laurie" and "Sweet and Low" in clear, resonant, voice. He was heartily applauded.

J. Pratt and his two daughters had quite an experience last Tuesday afternoon. Mr. Pratt had Mr. Clark's team of horses and was hauling a separator for the Ben Mayer's when the ranch broke. He was rushed to the doctor at Pine River, where it was found his injuries were just very bad bruises.

Dinner

STATE LEADER IS SPEAKER

Tells Group of Advantages Offered
Through 4-H Club
Work

Boys and Girls club work has become a leading educational program in rural Minnesota, one that will be a big factor in the advancement of agriculture, speakers told 30 calf club members at a dinner in the Chamber of Commerce rooms today sponsored by the Lions club of Brainerd, "partners" to this special group of future farmers and farmerettes in the raising of better calves.

T. A. Erickson, state Boys and Girls club leader, introduced by County Agent E. G. Roth as the big boss of club work in the state, told the boys and girls several interesting stories of how members had gained recognition through particular phases of club work.

He congratulated the Brainerd Lions club for the stand it had taken in sponsoring the calf club work in this part of the county.

Crow Wing county placed among the ten leading counties in the state last year and this record is most enviable, Mr. Erickson said, as Minnesota ranks leading in club work throughout the United States. At the present time, Mr. Roth explained in his introductory speech, this county has a membership in 4-H work of more than 600.

There is no philanthropy on the part of the Lions club in sponsoring this work, Mr. Roth stated previously to explaining the benefits Brainerd will derive through better farming in the county as a result of this educational program.

Henry Johnstone of Big Trout Lake responded to the request of members of the Lions club to sing. He sang two numbers "Annie Laurie" and "Sweet and Low" in clear, resonant voice. He was heartily applauded.

JURY GETS ISLE CASE AT 1:30 P. M.

State Contended That Clarence Tollefson Took Jolt to Save Charles Isle

SWEET TRIAL NEXT

Seven Criminal Actions Remain to Be Tried at This Term of Court

The jury was given the case of the state vs. Charles Isle at 1:30 P. M. today in district court.

The case concerns the theft of wood from a township school house to which charge Clarence Tollefson has already pleaded guilty and was sentenced to the St. Cloud reformatory for a term not to exceed two years.

The state contended in the action against Isle that Tollefson took the "jolt" to save Isle and also to stick to his original story in municipal court that he alone stole the wood, thus preventing action for perjury should he refute this statement.

The defense maintained that Isle did not steal the wood but that the wood came in his possession through Tollefson, whom, they claimed, brought the wood to him in payment of a debt.

The wood was taken from the Twin Island school. Trustees of the school told of marking the wood, later ordering a search warrant made out and subsequently finding the marked wood in the homes of Tollefson and Isle.

County Attorney Arthur J. Sullivan is representing the state with Attorney Hilding Swanson appearing for the defendant.

Remaining cases on the criminal calendar at this term of court before Judge Graham Torrance are:

State vs. Charles Clifford Sweet, charging abandonment of a child; state vs. Leo Durgin, charging theft of chickens; state vs. James Ray White, charging carnal knowledge; state vs. Jim Poulsen, charging operation of a gambling device; state vs. Kitty Gordon, charging sale of intoxicating liquor; state vs. Kitty Gordon and Donald Madden, charging sale of intoxicating liquor; state vs. Melvin Lyons, charging carnal knowledge.

NATURE PLAYS QUEER TRICKS ON BRAINERD; FROST DUE TONIGHT

Weather prognosticators were puzzled here today over the queer tactics of "mam weather" who dispensed sweltering heat yesterday then came back shortly before noon today with snow to chill Brainerd residents.

And to top it all weather bulletins announce "freezing temperature tonight; warmer tomorrow."

The miniature May blizzard swept down from out of northern Canada after blanketing many points in western Canada with snow yesterday. Calgary, Alberta, reported a six inch fall and the ground was covered at Moosejaw, Edmonton, Dauphin, Portage la Prairie and points of the northwest.

Only the more ambitious fishermen braved the elements today to get in their first day of pike and pickerel fishing of the season. The fishing was reported by them as just fair.

Thirty years ago today Brainerd experienced a snowfall of six inches when residents reverted back to the use of sleighs for transportation.

The speaker of the day at Rotary club Tuesday noon was Attorney C. A. Ryan, president of the Brainerd Chamber of Commerce. He related the work being done by that organization which included solving the theatre situation, and of encouraging construction of the Pine Beach hotel. He had received a letter recently from the F. & R. interests wherein Mr. Cumberley wrote that the architect had completed plans for the new theatre and the changes would include new fixtures, new seats, etc. Completion was expected by September or October and would insure Brainerd an atmospheric theatre.

It is expected to complete the Pine Beach hotel by next fall so it will open its first season next year. Construction work will possibly get under way next month.

Many inquiries are being received at the Chamber of Commerce regarding summer resort and lake home accommodations and the secretary is busy sending out replies and literature.

Walter H. Cobban reported that Cass county is to make a state aid road of the highway running on the west side of Gull Lake to Pine Beach hotel. As a county road it will be improved and made of standard width.

The board of directors will meet next Monday night.

The next meeting of the club will be held at the Ransford hotel. Officers and members expressed their appreciation of the many courtesies shown by Archers cafe.

ROOSEVELT

Our school had their picnic Friday being the last day of school. It rained but that did not interfere with them having their picnic as they had it in Louis Schellin's hall. All had an enjoyable time.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Bloomstrom called at Coffield's Tuesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Phil Isle, Sr., and family of Esdon visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. Coffield Sunday afternoon.

Louis Schellin had relatives from Mille Lacs Lake Sunday visiting.

Attendance at our Sunday school Sunday was 46, also had a nice program for Mother's Day. The men of the Sunday school served a nice dinner for the mothers and daughters and a very enjoyable time was spent by all.

Mrs. A. Coffield spent Tuesday afternoon in Brainerd at the home of Mrs. Bloomstrom and her father, Conrad Isle.

It seems like the flu is around in the neighborhood again, several have been sick in the last week.

The shower we had Friday surely was needed badly and you can just see the grass grow.

Leo E. Brown is up from St. Paul looking over the work that's going on over at Crooked Lake.

Mr. Cash called at the Coffield home Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Brand were in Pine Center Sunday.

Hanus was held for questioning.

NATURE PLAYS QUEER TRICKS ON BRAINERD; FROST DUE TONIGHT

Weather prognosticators were puzzled here today over the queer tactics of "mam weather" who dispensed sweltering heat yesterday then came back shortly before noon today with snow to chill Brainerd residents.

And to top it all weather bulletins announce "freezing temperature to-night; warmer tomorrow."

The miniature May blizzard swept down from out of northern Canada after blanketing many points in western Canada with snow yesterday. Calgary, Alberta, reported a six inch fall and the ground was covered at Moosejaw, Edmonton, Dauphin, Portage la Prairie and points of the northwest.

Only the more ambitious fishermen braved the elements today to get in their first day of pike and pickerel fishing of the season. The fishing was reported by them as just fair.

Thirty years ago today Brainerd experienced a snowfall of six inches when residents reverted back to the use of sleighs for transportation.

Rotary Club to Meet Hereafter at Ransford Hotel, Appreciate Courtesy of Archers

The speaker of the day at Rotary Club Tuesday noon was Attorney C. A. Ryan, president of the Brainerd Chamber of Commerce. He related the work being done by that organization which included solving the theatre situation, and of encouraging construction of the Pine Beach hotel. He had received a letter recently from the F. & R. interests wherein Mr. Cubberley wrote that the architect had completed plans for the new theatre and the changes would include new fixtures, new seats, etc. Completion was expected by September or October and would insure Brainerd an atmospheric theatre.

It is expected to complete the Pine Beach hotel by next fall so it will open its first season next year. Construction work will possibly get under way next month.

Many inquiries are being received at the Chamber of Commerce regarding summer resort and lake home accommodations and the secretary is busy sending out replies and literature.

Walter H. Cobban reported that Cass county is to make a state aid road of the highway running on the west side of Gull Lake to Pine Beach hotel. As a county road it will be improved and made of standard width.

The board of directors will meet next Monday night.

The next meeting of the club will be held at the Ransford hotel. Officers and members expressed their appreciation of the many courtesies shown by Archers cafe.

Of course John, we want a roof that's awfully good looking but first we want to be sure that it's absolutely weatherproof and won't catch fire from chimney sparks. Dad put Bird's Paroid Roofing on his farm buildings twenty years ago and it's still good.

He suggests we go to the Bird Dealer here and look at the Hex-Twins Bird & Son make. They will last for years—they are fire resisting and—they are Beautiful.

BIRD for Beauty—for Protection

Daphne by HAZEL LIVINGSTON

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR.

TO escape the nagging of a stepmother and the selfishness of her stepister, Daphne Haines, seventeen and beautiful, leaves home determined to make her own living. She has a difficult time in San Francisco and nearly starves until she encounters Ralph McKevitt, family friend, wealthy and handsome, whom her half-sister, Crystal, has decided to marry for luxury and comfort, rather than love. Ralph soon wins Daphne's affection, and she is exquisitely happy until Crystal appears. Crystal uses McKevitt as a "good thing," but spends much time with a debonaire Bohemian, Avery Woodward, who promises to teach her much of life and love and art. Unhappy because Ralph obviously neglects her now, Daphne moons and dreams until she reduces her efficiency to a point where she loses her position. Ill with humility and fright, she sits in the park. Suddenly she discovers Ralph driving along in a smart roadster. She hails him. He seems enthusiastic over their meeting, and she feels reassured that he still cares for her. She tells him her troubles and he promises to find her a position. Daphne becomes secretary to a prominent elderly lawyer, who takes a fatherly interest in her. She is overjoyed when he invites her and Ralph to his home. Meanwhile Crystal is making more demands on Ralph's time and purse. He is annoyed, but, he reasons, Crystal is a helpless type of girl, and he must stand by her.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XXI.

IT was Saturday night, almost Sunday morning. The first faint light of dawn struggled through the dingy curtains in Miss Viola's parlor.

"Here, try it on again," she mumbled, her mouth full of pins. And Daphne, as excitedly as if it were the first time instead of the eleventh since dinner time, obediently slipped out of her pink kimono and into the beige flannel Miss Viola held out.

"Turn around, no, not that way, the other way! Lift up your arm, till I see it. . . . Oh, I see it all right. . . . Oh! Gracious—! I just can't keep my eyes open any longer!" Viola yawned, tapping her mouth with a thimble finger. "Oh Miss Viola, I shouldn't have let you stay up so late to work on my dress! I ought to be ashamed."

"Oh that's all right. . . . Oh! Excuse me, when I get a yawning fit like this I just can't stop. . . . Oh, I didn't mind staying up. When it's something special like this, I kind of like to. The nights I've sat up making wedding dresses. . . . I'll be making yours next."

Daphne's cheeks flamed, but a little dreaming smile played around the corners of her mouth. Poor Miss Viola, always imagining something. . . . still. . . . it really might happen. . . . funnier things than that.

"There—I guess I can quit. You can finish off the seams later. Just press it good, and it'll look fine for tomorrow. I hope I'm awake when you go. I'll peek out of the window. I know you'll look swell. You make a wonderful looking couple, him so light, and you so dark!"

"Dear Miss Viola! Daphne flung impulsive arms around the squat, lavender figure, and hugged her. "I can't ever thank you enough for helping me like that. It—it means so much to me—"

While the iron was heating, Daphne went to the cretonne curtained closet where she kept her clothes, and lifted out the new tan coat she had bought.

Smart. . . . Ralph would like that. . . . Daphne laid her cheek against it. Then she got out the darling felt that she had chosen to go with it. Fifteen dollars! Fifteen whole dollars for that hat! It did seem a lot, even when you're earning $35 a week and sure of your job. . . . lots of slim lunches ahead. . . . to cut out those strawberry ice cream sodas with Miss Yardley. . . . Heavens! The iron was hot already!

When at last the new dress was pressed to perfection, Daphne lapped on the nearest chair a little limply.

"I am tired," she whispered to herself, "my knees are shaky. . . ."

"I'm Allan Winters," he was saying.

grabbed her purse, added a last minute drop of perfume to her best handkerchief. . . . there! clumsy! she almost spilled the bottle. . . .

She had the door open finally. "I'm all ready! Isn't it a gorgeous—"

She got that far before she fully realized that the young man in the gray overcoat wasn't Ralph. . . . There was the long yellow car parked right outside, Ralph's car, but this young man. . . .

She had a confused impression of shy blue eyes and slightly sticky ears. "I'm Allan Winters," he was saying, a little diffidently. He seemed sorry that he wasn't Ralph. "Ralph got a phone call late last night, too late to call you. He couldn't get away today so he thought. . . . he said. . . . he said he told you if anything happened I'd drive you over to Mr. Greeley's place—"

She wanted to burst into tears, to wave him away, and go back to

"I'm Allan Winters," he was saying.

Almost morning, but still time for a little nap. She was asleep before her head touched the pillow. In the gray light, her childish face was chalky, the faint shadows under her eyes were black, but her lips were faintly smiling. . . . so tired. . . . so happy. . . .

Of course she was ready too early. She climbed on a chair and teetered perilously in front of the little high mirror, trying to see if the skirt hung right. It did. And her nails were polished, and her nose powdered, and her lips rouged, not another earthly thing to do but wait.

Half past seven, Ralph said. It was half past seven now. What if he didn't come? . . . bell rang. She bed and cry, and cry, but she knew she couldn't do that. Mr. Greeley expected her, his sister expected her, Ralph expected her to go. . . . "I hope you don't mind?" she heard herself saying politely.

Just before they drove away something made her look back at the house. A frowzy gray head was stuck out of the parlor window. Miss Viola's face, mottled and puffy with sleep, stared incredulously at the moving roadster and the slight stranger at the wheel.

Daphne looked at her pitiously. Then the car gathered speed. They were on their way. The big day for which she had dreamed and waited had dawned, and would die. . . . all for nothing.

FARM RELIEF QUESTION HAS BECOME A REAL ISSUE.

democrats and from the republicans who laid it on the table to decide what disposition to make of it.

John Q. Tilson, republican floor leader, a strong opponent of the debenture provision, announced the rules committee would meet later in the day, or tomorrow, to decide whether the provision can be properly received by the house.

Soon after the bill was presented at the opening of the house session, Tilson conferred with the other two republican leaders, Speaker Nicholas Longworth and Chairman Snell of the rules committee, and decided to ask the judicial committee of the house to give an opinion as to whether the senate was within its constitutional powers in enacting such a measure.

The general impression is the committee will decide in accordance with the view of "the big three," that the debenture plan can be accepted and referred to a conference composed of committees representing both houses, so a compromise can be arranged.

While the farm bill languished then on the desk of the speaker, debate continued on the tariff bill.

Rep. Ramsey, of Iowa, who helped frame the bill as a member of the ways and means committee, defended its general provision, admitting some things were wrong with it. His speech followed action of the committee earlier in hearing grievances of the farm bloc against the bill. The grievances were so many that the committee decided to hold a night session tonight in hopes of concluding the hearing within the next few days.

BROADCASTING STATIONS ARE PUBLIC UTILITIES

Washington, May 15.—(U.P.)—Broadcasting stations are public utilities and can be regulated as such, Chairman Robinson of the Federal Radio commission told the senate interstate commerce committee today.

Robinson also testified legislation should be enacted to regulate power companies. He did not make any specific recommendations along this line.

EVERYTHING'S FINE NOW—EGGS FOR CADETS' BREAKFAST

Charleston, S. C., May 15.—(U.P.)—They had eggs for breakfast at the Citadel, Charleston college, today, and as a result the food strike of 700 cadets, called for one day only yesterday, appeared temporarily settled.

"Everything's fine now," one cadet explained after he had eaten. "We had eggs for breakfast."

The 700 undergraduates walked out of the dining hall yesterday morning in protest against the quality of the food.

Ain't Science Wonderful?

Veterinarians have discovered, according to Farm and Fireside, how to remove the bark from a dog and the bleat from a goat. It remains only for them to eliminate the mosquito's bite and the bee's sting to make country life practically 100 per cent perfect.

Copied English Name

The great English Derby is run at Epsom Downs. Col. M. Lewis Clark patterned the Kentucky Derby after the English Derby. He was the nephew of John and Henry Churchill, who owned the tract of land upon which the Churchill Downs race course is situated. Hence it was so named.

Land Hurt by Dam

The bottomland of Egypt is not as fertile as it was before the Assuan dam was built. The mud that was carried down the Nile by natural flooding is stopped by the dam. It settles back of the dam, and the clear water which irrigates the land below lacks the fertilizing element.

"Near" and "Far" East

The Near East applies to such parts of Europe as Syria, Greece, Turkey in Europe and other nearby countries. The Far East refers to China, Japan, India and other Asiatic countries.

Daphne

by HAZEL LIVINGSTON

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR.

To escape the nagging of a stepmother and the selfishness of her stepister, Daphne Haines, seventeen and beautiful, leaves home determined to make her own living. She has a difficult time in San Francisco and nearly starves until she encounters Ralph McKevitt, family friend, wealthy and handsome, whom her half-sister, Crystal, has decided to marry for luxury and comfort, rather than love. Ralph soon wins Daphne's affection, and she is exquisitely happy until Crystal appears. Crystal uses McKevitt as a "good thing," but spends much time with a debonnaire Bohemian, Avery Woodward, who promises to teach her much of life and love and art. Unhappy because Ralph obviously neglects her now, Daphne moons and dreams until she reduces her efficiency to a point where she loses her position. All with humility and fright, she sits in the park. Suddenly she discovers Ralph driving along in a smart roadster. She hails him. He seems enthusiastic over their meeting, and she feels reassured that he still cares for her. She tells him her troubles and he promises to find her a position. Daphne becomes secretary to a prominent elderly lawyer, who takes a fatherly interest in her. She is overjoyed when he invites her and Ralph to his home. Meanwhile Crystal is making more demands on Ralph's time and purse. He is annoyed, but, he reasons, Crystal is a helpless type of girl, and he must stand by her.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XXI.

It was Saturday night, almost Sunday morning. The first faint light of dawn struggled through the dingy curtains in Miss Viola's parlor.

"Here, try it on again," she mumbled, her mouth full of pins.

And Daphne, as excitedly as if it were the first time instead of the eleventh since dinner time, obediently slipped out of her pink kimono and into the beige flannel Miss Viola held out.

"Turn around, no, not that way, the other way! Lift up your arm, till I see it. . . mm. . . all right. . . Ooh! Gracious—I just can't keep my eyes open any longer!" Viola yawned, tapping her mouth with a thimble finger.

"Oh Miss Viola, I shouldn't have let you stay up so late to work on my dress! I ought to be ashamed."

"Oh that's all right. . . Ooh! Excuse me, when I get a yawning fit like this I just can't stop. . . Oh I didn't mind staying up. When it's something special like this, I kind of like to. The nights I've sat up making wedding dresses. . . I'll be making yours next."

Daphne's cheeks flamed, but a little dreaming smile played around the corners of her mouth. Poor Miss Viola, always imagining something. . . still. . . it really might happen. . . funnier things than that.

"There—I guess I can quit. You can finish off the seams later. Just press it good, and it'll look fine for tomorrow. I hope I'm awake when you go. I'll peek out of the window. I know you'll look swell. You make a wonderful looking couple, him so light, and you so dark!"

Dear Miss Viola! Daphne flung impulsive arms around the squat, lavender figure, and hugged her. "I can't ever thank you enough for helping me like that. It—it means so much to me—"

While the iron was heating, Daphne went to the dressing room, unlocked the door, and slipped on her new dress, and lifted out the new tan coat she had bought.

Smart. . . Ralph would like that. . . Daphne laid her cheek against it, loving it. Then she got out the darling felt that she had chosen to go with it. Fifteen dollars! Fifteen whole dollars for one hat! It did seem a lot, even when you're earning $35 a week and sure of your job. . . lots of slim lunches ahead. . . have to cut out those strawberry ice cream sodas with Miss Yardley. Heavens! The iron was hot already!

When at last the new dress was pressed to perfection, Daphne lapped on the nearest chair a little limply.

"I am tired," she whispered to herself, "my knees. . . shaky. . ."

"I'm Allan Winters," he was saying.

Almost morning, but still time for a little nap. She was asleep before her head touched the pillow. In the gray light, her childish face was chalky, the faint shadows under her eyes were black, but her lips were faintly smiling. . . so tired. . . so happy. . .

Of course she was ready too early. She climbed on a chair and teetered perilously in front of the little high mirror, trying to see if the skirt hung right. It did. And her nails were polished, and her nose powdered, and her lips rouged, not another earthly thing to do but wait.

Half past seven, Ralph said. It was half past seven now. What if he didn't come?

A bell rang. She grabbed her purse, added a last minute drop of perfume to her best handkerchief. . . there! clumsy! she almost spilled the bottle. . .

She had the door open finally, "I'm all ready! Isn't it a gorgeous—"

She got that far before she fully realized that the young man in the gray overcoat wasn't Ralph. . . There was the long yellow car parked right outside, Ralph's car, but this young man. . .

She had a confused impression of shy blue eyes and slightly sticky ears. "I'm Allan Winters," he was saying, a little diffidently. He seemed sorry that he wasn't Ralph. "Ralph got a phone call late last night, too late to call you. He couldn't get away today so he thought. . . he said. . . he said he told you if anything happened I'd drive you over to Mr. Greely's place."

She wanted to burst into tears, to wave him away, and go back to bed and cry, and cry, but she knew she couldn't do that. Mr. Greely expected her, his sister expected her, Ralph expected her to go. . . "I hope you don't mind?" she heard herself saying politely.

"I'm Allan Winters," he was saying.

Just before they drove away something made her look back at the house. A frowzy gray head was stuck out of the parlor window. Miss Viola's face, mottled and puffy with sleep, stared incredulously at the moving roadster and the slight stranger at the wheel.

Daphne looked at her piteously. Then the car gathered speed. They were on their way. The big day for which she had dreamed and slaved had dawned, and would die. . . all for nothing.

FARM RELIEF QUESTION HAS BECOME A REAL ISSUE

democrats and from the republicans who laid it on the table to decide what disposition to make of it.

John Q. Tilson, republican floor leader, a strong opponent of the debenture provision, announced the rules committee would meet later in the day, or tomorrow, to decide whether the provision can be properly received by the house.

Soon after the bill was presented at the opening of the house session, Tilson conferred with the other two republican leaders, Speaker Nicholas Longworth and Chairman Snell of the rules committee, and decided to ask the judicial committee of the house to give an opinion as to whether the senate was within its constitutional powers in enacting such a measure.

The general impression is the committee will decide in accordance with the view of "the big three," that the debenture plan can be accepted and referred to a conference composed of committees representing both houses, so a compromise can be arranged.

While the farm bill languished then on the desk of the speaker, debate continued on the tariff bill.

Rep. Ramsey, of Iowa, who helped frame the bill as a member of the ways and means committee, defended its general provision, admitting some things were wrong with it. His speech followed action of the committee earlier in hearing grievances of the farm bloc against the bill. The grievances were so many that the committee decided to hold a night session tonight in hopes of concluding the hearing within the next few days.

BROADCASTING STATIONS ARE PUBLIC UTILITIES

Washington, May 15.—(U.P.)—Broadcasting stations are public utilities and can be regulated as such, Chairman Robinson of the Federal Radio commission told the senate interstate commerce committee today.

Robinson also testified legislation should be enacted to regulate power companies. He did not make any specific recommendations along this line.

EVERYTHING'S FINE NOW—EGGS FOR CADETS' BREAKFAST

Charleston, S. C., May 15.—(U.P.)—They had eggs for breakfast at the Citadel, Charleston college, today, and as a result the food strike of 700 cadets, called for one day only yesterday, appeared temporarily settled.

"Everything's fine now," one cadet explained after he had eaten. "We had eggs for breakfast."

The 700 undergraduates walked out of the dining hall yesterday morning in protest against the quality of the food.

Ain't Science Wonderful?

Veterinarians have discovered, according to Farm and Fireside, how to remove the bark from a dog and the meat from a goat. It remains only for them to eliminate the mosquito's bite and the bee's sting to make country life practically 100 per cent perfect.

Copied English Name

The great English Derby is run at Epsom Downs. Col. M. Lewis Clark patterned the Kentucky Derby after the English Derby. He was the nephew of John and Henry Churchill, who owned the tract of land upon which the Churchill Downs race course is situated. Hence it was so named.

Land Hurt by Dam

The bottomland of Egypt is not as fertile as it was before the Assuan dam was built. The mud that was carried down the Nile by natural flooding is stopped by the dam. It settles back of the dam, and the clear water which irrigates the land below lacks the fertilizing element.

"Near" and "Far" East

The Near East applies to such parts of Europe as Syria, Greece, Turkey in Europe and other nearby countries. The Far East refers to China, Japan, India and other Asiatic countries.

Plans Visit in U. S.

You rather wonder how any plane could carry all this title around, yet Baron Friedrich Karl Freiherr Von und Zu Warthausen, the "Lindy of Germany," lugs it around with him. The Prince of Siam gave him the Siamese kitten as a mascot at Bangkok, where the flyer stopped on his oriental flight. He plans to visit the United States very soon.

As He Understood It

A Harvard student who puts in his odd hours, profitably, waiting on table, wrote to his family saying that the job was great fun. "One English student wanted cocoa for breakfast. He asked for it in his native accent 'cow-cow.' The waiter brought him two milks."—Boston Transcript.
